Specters Of Marx The State

In Jacques Derrida's work, Specters of Marx: The State of the Debt, the Work of Mourning and the New International, he uses William Shakespeare's Hamlet to frame a discussion of the history of the International, showing in the process the influence that Shakespeare's work had on Marx and Engels' writing.

1. By bourgeoisie is meant the class of modern capitalists, owners of the means of social production and employers of wage labour.. By proletariat, the class of modern wage labourers who, having no means of production of their own, are reduced to selling their labour power in order to live. [Engels, 1888 English edition] 2. That is, all written history. In 1847, the pre-history of society, the ...

Communist Manifesto (Chapter 1) - Marxists

According to Marx, "[e]very useful thing, as iron, paper, &c., may be looked at from the two points of view of quality and quantity" (Marx 45). The diversity of production necessarily yields diverse modes of use, and it is therefore the "work of history" to identify the various modes of use as well as the social standards by which those ...

Marx and the Idea of Commodity - Postcolonial Studies

Post-Marxism is a trend in political philosophy and social theory which deconstructs Karl Marx's writings and Marxism proper, bypassing orthodox Marxism. The term post-Marxism first appeared in Ernesto Laclau and Chantal Mouffe's theoretical work Hegemony and Socialist Strategy. It can be said that post-Marxism as a political theory was developed at the University of Essex by Laclau and Mouffe.

Yet the links between these movements are also widely acknowledged. Even inside the volume Specters of Marx, Derrida says that "Deconstruction...is also to say in the tradition of a certain Marxism, in a certain spirit of Marxism" and "one must assume the heritage of Marxism." So Taylor is right about "zig-zags".
